MYSTERY BRIDE OF 'NOEL COBB' FOUND TO BE DOTHAN GIRL

Margaret Married To Cobb When He Posed As a Minister

TOLD TO LEAVE BY GIRL'S FATHER

Another Chapter In the Strange Story of Student Told

(Associated Press)

DOTHAN, Ala., Feb. 24.—Another chapter in the history of Noel Cobb's arduous adventures was written here today when whispers concerning "Margaret" developed into cold facts, which revealed the somewhat mysterious figure in the Decatur, Ga., triangle, as another of his wives.

The "Margaret," whose letters were found in Cobb's possession, is Mrs. Noel Cobb, formerly Miss Margaret Farmer, prominent Dothan girl, who met and wed Cobb while she was a student at Peabody college, Nashville. Cobb and Miss Farmer were married at Jeffersonville, Ind., November last year. This Mrs. Cobb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Farmer, well known citizens.

Posed as Preacher

Cobb was introduced to Miss Farmer as a Presbyterian minister. He told her he was in charge of a church in Indianapolis at that time. After marriage, Cobb and his wife came to Dothan to visit Mrs. Cobb's parents. While here he was invited to fill the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church. He accepted the invitation and created a most favorable impression.

Later Mr. Farmer learned that Cobb was not a minister and had imposed upon his daughter and family. Farmer asked him to leave Dothan until he could straighten out matters. Cobb departed immediately and was returned.

Mrs. Cobb kept up correspondence with Cobb until recently, it was said. Letters found among his effects, and "Margaret" were from Mrs. Margaret Cobb, the family asserted. Proceedings have been started by Mr. Farmer and today he was unable to say just what course he would take the matter. It was not quite clear relatives of Mrs. Cobb here, how Miss Farmer had known the man before the marriage. It was said, however, that the courtship was a whirlwind affair. Mrs. Cobb is regarded as a very beautiful and accomplished young woman and is said to have been loyal to the fullest degree to her husband.

Whether she still believes in him is not stated. Cobb today is in an unnamed South Carolina sanitarium, after having been taken to his home by Anderson by his mother yesterday following his escape at Decatur, Ga., as a French diplomat. He was married to Miss Virginia Hollingsworth, Agnes Scott student, February after a two-day courtship. Later he became ill and was sent to an Atlanta hospital, where his mother died him.

Mystery Bride Found

When it was first learned that Cobb was not what he represented himself to be, it was believed that he had married another girl prior to his marriage to Miss Hollingsworth. The name of this girl today was learned and proved to be Miss Farmer.

A South Carolinian, Cobb attended the University of South Carolina at Columbia. After one year he went to Vanderbilt university at Nashville, Tenn., and later to the Presbyterian theological seminary at Louisville, Ky.

About February 1 he came to Birmingham, where he represented himself to church officials as a Frenchman named Dupre, commissioned by a French university to paint portraits

GERTRUDE GOLDIN

Gertrude Goldin, twelve, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was saved from a fiendish attack by a degenerate when her screams brought a crowd of neighbors to the scene. The girl is crippled as the result of infantile paralysis, and police had difficulty rescuing her assailant from an angry mob.

FATHER SHERIDAN GOES TO WOODLAWN

Completes Nine Year Service Here On Next Easter

Rev. Father Joseph M. Sheridan, St. Anne's Catholic church, expects to leave about the middle of March for Woodlawn where he takes the St. Clements church charge. Letter from Edward P. Allen, Bishop of Mobile, advised Rev. Sheridan of the charge, commending him highly for the work which has been accomplished here.

Transference to the Woodlawn church is regarded as a substantial promotion by Reverend Sheridan who stated that while he regretted to leave friends he has made here that he appreciates the promotion.

Father Sheridan came here nine years ago and since entering these communities has compiled an enviable record in the building of his church. Friends feel that his promotion is warranted.

L. V. Parker Dies After Long Illness

L. V. Parker, Austinville officer, and beloved resident of that community, died this morning at seven o'clock, after an illness which extended over a period of about six months.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Austinville Methodist church, Rev. Lang officiating, and interment will be made in city cemetery, Priest directing.

The deceased is survived by his wife; one son, J. L. Parker, of Birmingham; two daughters, Mrs. J. D. Weams, of Hartselle and Mrs. J. H. Lipscomb of Slidell, La.

Members of the Junior Order of Albany and Decatur were invited to meet tonight at Austinville lodge rooms, with the members of that lodge to plan for the funeral.

Decatur Postoffice Bill Is Approved

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—A bill to increase the limit of cost of the post-office at Decatur, Ala., from $65,000 to $70,656, the difference of $5,656 to reimburse private contributors to the original building was approved today by the house public buildings and grounds committee.

The measure was sponsored by Representative Almon, democrat, Alabama.

LOCAL MERCHANT IS DEAD OF WOUND BANDIT INFLICTED

Funeral Services Held For T. A. Bryant at Hartselle Today

OFFICERS WORK ON GOOD CLUES

Developments Likely To Be Announced In Short Time

With the death of T. A. Bryant, well known local merchant, as a result of wounds inflicted by an unidentified, young white bandit Saturday afternoon who made an unsuccessful effort to rob the Bryant store on East Market street, officers have redoubled their efforts to apprehend the slayer and it was reported today several important clues are in the hands of the authorities.

Funeral services for the deceased merchant were held today from the First Christian church in Hartselle, his former home.

Mr. Bryant was said to have been shot in the abdomen and to have suffered other wounds about the arms and face, as a result of the bandit's attack with a meat cleaver, when Mr. Bryant was able to turn the assailant's pistol toward the latter.

Following the attack the bandit threatened a small crowd which was gathered declaring if "any of you follow me, I'll meet you in h.....". He then is declared to have entered a coupe and to have driven rapidly away going in the direction of the Bee Line highway. Later a coupe was said to have passed through Hartselle, going at a rapid rate of speed.

Mr. Bryant was removed to the hospital and given every medical attention in an effort to save his life, but his wounds were of such a serious nature that little hope ever was held for his recovery.

Chester Bryant, 13 year old son of the deceased, and who was a witness to the tragedy, was not hurt. He was brushed aside by the bandit while the youth held a gun, but was not attacked.

Paymaster and Escort Dangerously Hurt By Bandit Trio

(Associated Press)

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 24.—Three men shot down M. L. Berlin, assistant paymaster of the Western Maryland Dairy company and Patrolman Patrick Durkin today and escaped in an automobile with $16,000 in cash and checks.

Berlin and the patrolman are dangerously wounded. Of the money taken, nearly $13,000 was in cash. Berlin, with the policeman as escort was on his way to a bank.

Griffith Enters Into State Race

A. A. Griffith, prominent Cullman attorney has entered the race for the lieutenant governorship of Alabama, it became known here today. Mr. Griffith is the third to enter, George W. Duncan, Athens and R. H. Powell of Macon having entered sometime ago. It was stated here sometime ago that Senator Griffith would likely make the solicitors race in this district, but his announcement for the state office removes all question of his making the local race. Mr. Griffith is well known in this section and will receive a good vote, it is indicated.

NEW HEARING FOR COUNTESS DENIED; COURTS WILL ACT

Legal Interpretation of Moral Turpitude Now Is Sought

BRITISH NOT TO START REPRISALS

Bond Will Be Granted Woman During Court Fight

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—A new hearing for the Countess of Cathcart on the order for her exclusion from the United States was denied today by the labor department.

In the opinion of Acting Secretary White the case now only can be handled by the courts. A judicial interpretation as to whether moral turpitude is a crime and constitutes a bar to admission of aliens admitting acts of that sort, it was said, is desired by the labor department.

Mr. White, after a conference with Assistant Secretary Husband and Solicitor Theodore Risley notified Arthur G. Hayes, attorney for the countess, who had requested that the case be re-opened for the admission of new evidence, of the decision.

Mr. Risley said cases similar to that of the Countess were continually coming before the department and he hoped the court action growing out of the habeas corpus proceedings, instituted by Mr. Hayes, for her, would define for the department a course which it could follow in the future.

The solicitor added that he had ordered the release of the Countess from Ellis island for a ten-day period under bond, only after he had conferred with various departmental officers, who advised that the case be decided by the courts and the Countess given freedom while it was in the process of final adjustment.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The British government will consider no proposals to institute reprisals for the barring of the Countess of Cathcart from the United States. This, in effect, was the reply of the Foreign Secretary, Sir Austen Chamberlain to a spirited cross fire of questions in the house of commons today regarding the working of the American immigration laws.

Sir Austen said the British government considered it entirely the business of the American authorities as to who should or should not be admitted to the United States.

HERBERT L. COBBS FOUND DEAD TODAY IN ROOM AT CLUB

Athletic Club Head Is Believed To Have Taken Own Life

HAD BEEN IN ILL HEALTH SOMETIME

Shooting Is Thought To Have Occurred at 8:00 o'clock

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 24.—Herbert L. Cobbs 50, president of the Birmingham Athletic club and paymaster for the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, was found dead today in his room at the recently completed building of the athletic club.

A pistol was found by his side. His body was discovered by a maid. He had been in ill health for sometime.

Coroner J. D. Russum was summoned and immediately started an inquiry to determine whether it was a case of self destruction as reported to police headquarters. Coroner Russum later said there was no doubt but that it was a case of suicide.

He said that no motive for the alleged act has been found.

Mr. Cobbs was dressed in night clothing and evidently shot himself about eight o'clock this morning, the coroner said. One shot had been fired from a pistol fully loaded. The bullet entered the right temple.

All windows and doors to his apartment were tightly closed and no one heard the report of the pistol.

The telephone operator in the building said Mr. Cobbs called someone on the telephone from his room about eight o'clock, but the operator handled it as a routine call and did not know with whom the man conversed.

He is survived by two brothers, E. D. Cobbs and Billie Cobbs, both of Birmingham.

Pryor Rice Is Laid To Rest

Pryor Rice, aged 73 years, resident of the Somerville section, was laid to rest this morning at 10 o'clock. The deceased was stricken with paralysis two weeks ago and passed away Monday night. He is survived by his widow, one son Harry Rice, Albany and one daughter, Miss Ida Rice. He was a staunch member in the Presbyterian church. Hundreds of friends over the county will miss him in the daily walks of life.

MANY mothers with children with no past objectionable to our national purity are deported day after day from Ellis Island in the steerage.

Why the discrimination in favor of the charming lady to be sent home because she once eloped with a man not her husband? We seem to mix respect for British rank with our hatred of loose morals.

ATHENS LODGE HOST TO ODD FELLOWS

Degrees Conferred By Twin Cities and Cullman Teams

A number of local Odd Fellows attended a meeting of the order at Athens Tuesday evening, meeting with Limestone Lodge No. 196 at which time the first and second degrees were conferred on two candidates by degree teams from Cullman and Albany-Decatur.

Visitors were present from Cullman, Athens, Decatur, Pulaski, Rockwell and Minor Hill. Practically every chair in the hall was filled and members present voted it one of the most interesting and profitable meetings held in a long time.

At the close of the degree works a number of short addresses were made after which members present were escorted to a Cafe where an elegant supper was served. Members attending from Albany-Decatur were J. L. Plemmons, J. L. Buchanan, J. J. Akers, E. H. Akers, S. M. Foster, R. E. Wardlow, J. W. Phillips, J. T. Weatherly Jr., J. A. Jennings and W. L. Hatchett.

NEGRO SEEKS HEAT BUT FINDS DEATH

He Asks Right to Warm and Drops Dead In the Dwelling

The quest of Willie Gaines, local negro, for warmth today ended in his discovery of death.

The negro appeared just before noon this morning at a dwelling south of the Decatur union station, at the residence of Alex. Warshall, and requested permission to come in and warm himself.

The request was granted and for a moment the negro stood by the stove, apparently enjoying the heat. He seemed chilled and after a short time he toppled over on the floor dead, police reports stated.

The negro was said to have been employed by the Albany Dry Cleaners and to have been about 50 years of age. A search of his person by Officer Bryant, of the Decatur police department, disclosed a bank book in his pocket, showing a substantial balance at the City National bank.

FUNERAL SERVICES BE HELD THURSDAY FOR J. B. COLES

HE WAS HELD IN HIGHEST ESTEEM

Ill Health Believed To Have Caused Act, Reports State

J. B. Coles, prominent Morgan County farmer, died this morning of gunshot wounds in the head, apparently self-inflicted, at his home two miles northwest of Hartselle. The top of his head had been blown away, according to reports received here.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Hopewell church, eight miles west of Hartselle, by Rev. Grover C. Walker of Birmingham and interment will be made in the Hopewell cemetery. Priest in charge.

The deceased is survived by his wife: five sons, Walter Coles, of Falkville; William and Roy Coles of Birmingham; J. B. Coles, Jr., of Memphis and Lester Coles, who made his home with his parents; two daughters, Mrs. Herbert McCluskey of Memphis and Mrs. Grace Austin of Birmingham.

Called By Family According to information received here, Mr. Coles had been in ill health sometime and it is presumed that he was worried over his physical condition.

This morning Mrs. Austin is said to have gone to her father's bedroom to call him for breakfast. A short time after she left the room, after giving the call, a shot was heard and an investigation revealed the body of Mr. Coles, part of his head having been torn away by the load of shot.

H. M. Priest local undertaker was called and left shortly afterward, to prepare the body for burial.

Mr. Coles was well known throughout the southern section of the county, being held in the highest respect and esteem by his hundreds of friends and his untimely death today was a great shock.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Conclusion

The curtains spread upon vague shapes that took form in a phantom that slowly emerged from a vapor of pale blue light. Out of a far background, admirably colored by skilled artists, spires and domes and gabled roofs of a conglomerate city loomed. Illuminated windows shone dully. Miniature streets, crooked and narrow, came down out of the perspective and converged upon an open space before the invisible footlights—the painted city's market place.

In the center of the square a pillar arose, with a rim of water trough at its base. Against this column, her head bowed, shoulders drooped and motionless body limp in a posture of despair, leaned an unknown girl, of some warm pulsed type, her body gleaming white through a diaphanous drape—a girl who was fresh and young and lovely. Hunched before the youthful figure three old crones in the garb of witches swayed in rhythm with the plaintive song of the orchestra. In the hands of each a lantern swung, its flame shedding a dim, colored glow. Even as the audience gazed at the weird symbolism of the picture—a vibrant, beautiful, unsmiling girl hemmed in by evil witches—one of the old crones, one whose lantern glowed in sickly yellow, rose and, still swaying to the music, lifted her right so that its yellow rays bathed the body of the girl. Across the sky over the painted city in the background, great letters made by invisible lamps manipulated from behind the stage slowly took shape and, like a fantastic reflection, spelled the word, "MISUNDERSTANDING."

The letters died away. The second witch arose and danced before the girl against the pillar. The glimmer from her lantern bathed the white form in scarlet, and new letters glowed in the sky—"DIS-TRUST."

The guests of Joanna stirred in their seats and settled again into tense, breathless silence. The third witch danced and held aloft her light. The figure in the market place took on a hue of green. New letters formed: "ENVY."

Yvonne, who had stared fascinated at the unfolding of the tableau, suddenly was conscious of a breath on her bare shoulder. She looked around and peered into the fixed eyes of Brandon. Around his forehead a bandage shone white. He stood beside the vacant chair into which he had intended to drop quietly. Yvonne watched his lips and saw them frame the whispered words—the words he remembered as Joanna's plaint to Eggleston, long ago, in the sombre library of the house on the Avenue when she told the banker of the three things that had haunted her in her coping with the problems of the girlhood of today—"Misunderstanding, Distrust and Envy."

Brandon was so tightly wrapped in the spell of his memory and this amazing reminder staged by Joanna with her troupe of actors and actresses especially brought from Paris, that Yvonne reached back and touched him to bring him to realization of his surroundings. He brushed his hand across his eyes and dropped into the vacant chair.

"I am just in time," he remarked, "to witness the sensation she arranged so secretly. I fancy it will be most interesting."

Yvonne studied him a moment and then turned back to the scene on the stage.

The three witches danced away into the background. Out of the crooked little streets of the make-believe city other shapes were coming down into the open space—fantastic shapes, with empty faces pallid white with chalk, ghastly, grotesque. On the small stage it seemed as if there was an army of them, the population of the city they sprung from.

Brandon started so violently that Yvonne and Kenilworth shot a glance at him. When they looked back upon the stage they saw why. Unquestionably he was among those grotesque figures, for one of them walked with exaggerated grace and his head was bandaged!

And, just then, as if a common realization had swept over the men and women, the puppets and mannequins, the pierrots and Columbines in the audience, there was a silent sound of pent-up breath, escaping hundreds of lips. Almost every one of those who had come to the revel of the Golden Girl recognized, in one of those weird, white-faced figures on the stage—himself or herself!

Betty Weymouth saw that Joanna had caricatured her. Prince Michael saw himself, as surely as Brandon had recognized the graceful form in the bandage. John, who stood at the back of the pavilion saw a masque of himself. Everyone else saw something of his or her representation in the silent city's inhabitants as they trooped down into the market place around the nude girl who leaned against the column in the center.

The girl raised her head and shook the long strands of her blousy corn yellow hair. When she saw that the witches had faded away from her, and that she was among the people of the city—the people of the world in which she found herself, her body straightened. The orchestra burst into a joyous rhythm. The girl leaped into the throng of masques and danced among them—danced gaily, her filmy draperies flowing in utter abandon.

"Watch the witches!" Brandon murmured. He spoke to himself, but Yvonne and Kenilworth added in acknowledgment that the thought had come to them, too.

A little company, in the masques of morose solemnity, assembled at one side of the stage. Up to them and around them the girl danced ecstatically. They swayed back and forth in time with the young feet that seemed to dance as if slipped with quicksilver. A note of mournfulness crept into the music. The girl danced slowly, more heavily. The witch with the yellow lantern, "Misunderstanding," fell into step behind her. The girl shrank; relentlessly the evil witch pressed upon her. An eerie lamentation shrieked from violins and reeds; slyly, mercilessly, "Misunderstanding" drove the lovely girl back to the pillar.

Again the dancer escaped her baleful guardians and moved merrily, hopefully, carelessly. She was

"It will be quite all right, won't it?" she asked brightly. "If I ask you to share me, with him?"

driven back from the group that gathered around her, by "Envy." A third time she tried to spread her rhythmic doctrine of carefree youth and grace and vividness, and again—

In the audience a woman uttered a half scream, half moan. Another woman rose to half over to her. A man stood. In an instant the puppets and mannequins, the pierrots and Columbines were on their feet. Many faces were as white as those of the mute character on the stage. Now the three witches, all of them, were bearing down upon the girl who fought valiantly to overcome the misunderstanding, the distrust, and the envy of those white faced people who stifled her.

The music quickened. The girl, in a panic, sought to flee. The witches penned her in and drove her, step by step, while the silent masques circled and swayed monotonously, back to the water-trough post. The orchestra burst into a discordant crescendo. The dancer, helpless, discouraged, backed against the pillar and flung out her arms in mute appeal. The witches raised their lanterns in hideous glee. The green, yellow and scarlet rays pierced the filmy covering of the young body and bathed it in a mellow glow. And by some weird trickery of a hidden electrician the rays from the lantern of Misunderstanding, Distrust and Envy made a shadow against the city, a shadow black as night—the shadow of a cross.

This time it was Yvonne who whispered softly: "Crucified by those who don't know!"

With a common impulse Yvonne, Kenilworth and Dorminster, and even, Betty Weymouth, made their way through the silent, thoughtful throng of departing guests, to the door that led onto the pavilion stage—the door through which Yvonne had seen Joanna disappear before the actors began their play. The director of the company of performers shook his head:

"Mademoiselle left with me the money to pay my troupe, and then went away," he said. "She was most generous, and we would speak more of our gratitude to her but she is not here."

John, his face as white as had been those of the actors, appeared out of the dark of the grounds. He confronted Yvonne.

"We must find Brandon—quick!" he exclaimed. "She has gone. I went to the house to wait for her. I wanted to say—a great many things. Your butler told me she left alone, in her car. There is a message, he says, for Brandon."

The horns of the automobiles in which the guests at Villa Amette were starting for their homes and their reflections upon the amazing climax with which the Golden Girl had revealed them to themselves, echoed up from the sea road. John, Kenilworth, Dorminster and Yvonne hurried to Joanna's little sitting room. Martha, Cecile and Marie, Joanna's maids, with wonder, shock in their faces, met them. Martha led Yvonne into the gorgeous bed-room and pointed to a glittering mass of jewels—every ornament from her mistress's case, piled on the brocaded satin covering. In her hand Martha held an envelope. Her fingers shook as she handed it to Yvonne.

"She said it was for Mr. Brandon," the maid exclaimed. "And she said I was to say there would be nothing more—ever!" Martha lost her fight to keep back her tears and her eyes suddenly swam with them. "She's gone, ma'am!" she cried. "She said somebody was taking her money away from her because she was too old fashioned inside!"

One of the supremely modern young persons whose left hands spread vari-colored weaves on the silk counter in the great department store called to her companions on either side of her:

"Watch your step, children! Good Morning is coming!"

Mr. Harkness, the Buyer, sleek and self-sufficient, as ever, murmured soft apologies as he edged his way through the crowds before the counter to summon with his eyes, the girl with the shimmering gold brown hair. His manner was gentle, strangely respectful. His tone was almost deferential.

"You are to get your wraps, Miss Twenty-seven, that is to say, Miss Joanna! It is Mr. Graydon's request. You are to go in his car to this address on the Avenue!"

He handed Miss Twenty-seven—with her old number in her old job—the slip of paper on which he had written the directions given him by The Old Man's quiet secretary. When she read, the shadow came into her face, and something of dread. She had written a long, very long letter to this same address, to Andrew Eggleston. She had hoped she never have to face him. But she turned away, with a "thank you" for Good Morning, and went to get her cloak, and to the subway.

In the big, solemn library in the house of Andrew Eggleston, on the Avenue, where Joanna once had spent the long hours of an afternoon, with the blueprint she had sliced from John's rooms spread between her and the banker, a remarkable company was gathered.

Graydon, his gray face alight with tender excitement, repeated to a man of his kind who stood apart with him, the thing he had said over and over again to everyone in the room:

"And she came back, her skirts as scant as ever, her lips as red and her hair as imperiously short. If there was any change at all it was in her eyes. They were just as brown and shining but, somehow, they gave the impression that someone had looked very deep in them—into their very depths, perhaps."

"And she asked if she might have her job and her number, and gave me back her bank book—with nothing in it—and asked if I'd send it back to old Eggleston, here, and save her the trouble of seeing him. When I asked questions she said, simply: 'I learned a lot—that wasn't good to know. I want to forget it!'"

The man to whom Graydon talked went over to the table where Eggleston sat, his head set well down into his shoulders. Other men stood at the table, too, important men they seemed, of the importance that is marked by large achievements. Among them was a noted sculptor. And an artist, and two or three famous architects.

On the massive table, between them and the banker, and where John's blueprint once had been spread, by Joanna, a glistening white model stood, the miniature of an imposing structure of great halls and marbled columns reaching upward to a gold dome. Above the dome a figure poised, a slender figure that seemed to imprison some ineffable joyousness. The sculptor, one whose name is far flung, passed his fingers lovingly over this delicate form destined later, to be translated into marble. This part of the model was his handiwork. He was proud of its association with the monumental structure it was to embellish.

Eggleston, who had watched quietly, observed:

"That was her idea. She explained it to me across this table when she brought me the dream her young friend had been bothering her about. She said memorials ought to have life in them, instead of death." The banker chuckled, and the sternness in his eyes softened. "She said the usual kind of memorial always made her mad because they reminded her of so many people who weren't dead that ought to be!"

Foreman, chief of the firm which had sponsored John, broke in:

"So it was she, after all, who conceived the soldier as always stirred to valor by the kiss of a girl—or of a woman who is still a girl to him? Yet you compelled me to get the conception across my desk to young Wilmore as if it were my own! He fought against it, for a time, but the grandeur of it came to him suddenly. Shall we tell him—today?"

"No," Eggleston replied. "It will be sufficient for him to learn, from us, that the money with which he has worked this model out, the funds that promoted his idealistic plan and translated his blueprinted dream into this step toward reality, came from her—that this was how she used the money I gave her but which remained so much a mystery to her."

After a brief pause the banker added dryly:

"Whatever else there is for him to know I imagine she'll tell him—if she wants to."

GRADE "D" RAW?

The following remarkable announcement was made in Tuesday's issue of The Daily and copied in Wednesday morning issue of the Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Twin Cities Lead Entire State in Milk Ratings."

Still some low grade milk being sold, officers say.

Reading further, we find this, "Health Officials while pleased with the showings made, point out that the leadership of the Twin Cities did not mean that all milk sold here is of high grade. Some Grade 'D' milk still is being disposed of, it was stated, but the high rating was made possible by the fact that such a large percentage of the milk sold here is pasteurized and becomes grade 'A' pasteurized."

Grade "A" Pasteurized Milk is SAFE MILK, it is SATISFACTORY MILK, it meets the approval and the requirements of the HEALTH OFFICIALS and the PHYSICIANS who are interested in the health of our people.

You are entitled to Grade "A" Milk, why not have it delivered to your door every day?

Is your appetite gone?

REMEMBER, how it used to be when you could hardly wait for mealtime? And then, sit down and eat several helpings of everything—enjoy every morsel and get up from the table feeling satisfied with the world, happy with everybody and ready for anything?

But what a difference in living when even the sight and smell of food sickens you! Never hungry—no matter how tempting the food is—nothing tasting right. And then, after nibbling at a few bites, feeling worse than ever.

Oh, life is hardly worth living this way. And yet, all in the World the matter with you is that you are starving for rich, red blood. And it is acknowledged everywhere that S. S. S. helps Nature build these healthy red-blood-cells by the millions!

All you need to do to get back that wonderful appetite is to build rich, red-blood-cells with S. S. S. It's simple. Just try it, like thousands are doing every day. See for yourself what S. S. S. will do. S. S. S. means blood with a punch—brimful of new life and energy. Get your S. S. S. at any good druggist. The larger size is more economical.

Festivities of the brilliant Knight Templar affair held at Hotel Lyons last night were opened at Masonic hall with conferring the Templar degree upon B. E. Preuit.

Can't kid Birmingham officers about being afraid to attack the insane negro who held them at bay, any other officer would have gladly given him plenty of room.

It isn't necessary to put away a ray of sunshine for a rainy day in North Alabama, so far as the weather is concerned.

Plant more food crops, raise more live stock, improve farm environs, three good words to pass to Morgan farmers this year.

If you must be a loudspeaker, then broadcast something constructive when you broadcast and don't allow local interference to reduce your volume. If it's good talk about it, if it's not good it's best to swallow.

The Detroit blackhand evidently was not in tune with the famous tenor. Perhaps if more listeners to singers gave vent to their feelings, there would be more notes threatening disaster to songsters.

Anytime a fellow tells you that the fish are simply demanding attention at a nearby resort, just put it down carefully that he is one of the wanderers who knows not whereof he speaks. All liars are not fishermen.

The Huntsville Daily Times greets its readers with the headline, "Muscle Shoals Legislation has been held up." That isn't regarded as news any more, we have become accustomed to such reports and relegate them to inside pages, or to violent editorial explosion.

The back to nature impulse did not benefit one individual who placed his family in a pigsty while he rented the house for personal profit. Health authorities got busy and convinced him that it is better to observe nature from a distance.

This minority engaged in bombarding prohibition statutes would be favorably passed upon if they remembered the adage, "Silence is Golden." The return of light wines and beer will later mean the return of liquor in full pre-war force and that's some force.

The Opelika Daily News pulls one for the book saying that since reading the memoirs of Colonel House that they are convinced that House and not Wilson guided the nation through the tremendous years of 1913-1921, a Dr. Johnson-Boswell combination.

Age has not aided the memory of George Washington. Folks in the nation who have nothing else to do are digging up Washington memoirs for the purpose of proving that he told a couple of "white lies," drank a little, cussed a little, and gambled a little. Seems to The Daily that all this stir was not needed to determine that General Washington was a full-fledged man.

Sometime ago the subject of a tourists camp for Albany-Decatur was discussed and dismissed. Now the Associated Press tells of the establishment of Birmingham's tourist camp, spread over ten acres of land. That for the "tin can" tourists whom no one wants in the town. If the Birmingham progressiveness is not an argument in favor of the establishment of a camp here and in every other Alabama city then it is best that we again dismiss the subject of a camp site here. Signs upon entering the city are excellent, tourist camp with modern facilities is still better, an inducement for folks to talk about the hospitality to be found in the Twin Cities when they have reached their destination.

BASEBALL TEAM FOR CONSIDERATION OF FANS

While the Tuesday night meeting at the Decatur City hall was not characterized by a heavy attendance of baseball fans, still the opinion expressed in the meeting was plainly in favor of the organization of a team here and the belief that the organization will prove paying before the season is brought to a close. That little handful of enthusiastic fans may find a way out of the present financial difficulty and pave the way for the Twin Cities to enjoy a share of the national sport.

Formation of a baseball team here is looked upon by lovers of athletics as a distinct progressive move, advertising as it does these cities as lovers of clean and wholesome sport, advertising these cities as progressive and willing to back any fair proposal.

Many will turn the cold shoulder to the offer, mainly through a knowledge of the fate which was meted to other teams representing the Twin Cities in the past. None of the teams have been glowing financial successes, but on the occasion of the entrance into the Alabama-Tennessee league the fault did not lie in these towns. Fans made the sport pay here through their attendance, the failure came in smaller towns in the circuit which were unable to stand the monthly strain in players payrolls.

The Daily believes that baseball will be a success here if the cities enter the proposed circuit that is now in existence. Cities represented are not so large as Albany-Decatur, in the main, but they have the spirit. Often results are not counted in numbers, but in the spirit of the few who are willing to see the thing through. A handful of men or women have put over many a proposition which was declared a failure from the start by the majority. We can support a baseball league.

KILBY ENTERS FORMALLY THROUGH THE COLUMNS OF THE DAILY

Thomas E. Kilby, ex-governor of Alabama, announced his entrance into the Senate race some months ago, but it was not until Tuesday that Governor Kilby came before the people of this section of Alabama stating his plans and his platform. He did so through the columns of The Daily, explaining in minute detail what he hopes to accomplish if the seat vacated by Mr. Underwood is given to him in the coming fall primaries.

Thomas E. Kilby has been a substantial man in this state for many years and he has received honors at the hands of Alabamians, there are some who are opposed to his Senate race for this part, but there seems to be little reasoning in such a stand. If a man has produced results in the past that is all the more reason why he should be chosen by the people as their representative in the future.

The ex-governor is going to make a strong race. It seems at this time that he is the chosen man from North Alabama though there is a long time between February and August. He has strong opposition, opposition which is at this time busy in the state and possibly maintaining a strength in certain portions, but Kilby is not asking for office because he seeks an office as an honor. Kilby at this time busy in the state and certainly maintaining from Alabama in the belief that he will be able to serve the state of Alabama more efficiently than any other candidate in the race. He enters the political arena as a business man, frankly admitting that his knowledge of political etiquette is possibly more limited than that of other candidates, but a fine business sense will serve in its stead. Kilby is prepared to do more in the Senate than merely stand by and wait for the other fellow to move, it is not the rule in business and he is carrying business principles with him when the people cast their ballot in his favor.

ANTI-SMOKERS ASSOCIATION SHOULD TAKE NOTICE

Appearing in the columns of the Age-Herald days ago in the Believe-It-Or-Not cartoon was a picture of Black Squirrel, Seneca Indian who is said to have smoked a pipe daily for 103 years and is now in splendid health. We agree that the heading of the cartoon is most appropriate, but the subjects often furnish food for thought. This Indian may not have smoked for 103 years, but he has smoked for a long long while, enough to establish an argument against the belief of some that smoking will wreck the system of the adult cut down business efficiency and otherwise disqualify for the race of life. Tobacco, no doubt is harmful to the young, but to a man, and woman this day and time, the weed has become regarded as a necessity, quieting nerves and taking a few wrinkles from the troubled brow. Tobacco has become popular in general use since the advent of prohibition, this establishing the only claim that prohibition is a failure.

But getting back to the use of tobacco, we wonder how many deaths can be traced to the use of tobacco, how many lives the enjoyable habit has cost. Surely no figure in comparison with automobile accidents, train wrecks, lack of care in dress, sitting in draughts, or any number of causes which take an enormous annual toll of death. If it is often said in jest, "My grandfather died from the use of tobacco at the early age of 94," of course only meant to be funny by the speaker, but there is much truth in the statement. Tobacco regulation with reference to sale to children should be adhered to strictly, but when it comes to grown-ups it is likely that ardent smokers of the weed will continue to woo.

BIGAMIST CHARGE COMBATTED WITH INSANITY PLEA

Here it is again, the same old rabbit's foot being worked on the court and the public. A young man, ostensibly a South Carolinian, went to a Georgia college, posed as a French diplomat, painter of portraits of typical American girls, married a pretty and sweet attendant of the institution, had letters found in his suitcase purporting to be from his wife, faced a bigamy charge, then was taken suddenly and violently ill, a victim of 'dementia praecox,' whatever that happens to be. It is too bad he didn't suffer the terribly named malady before he married the pretty college girl, before he had wrecked the life of the girl and the traditions of her family.

Insanity, when will people stop listening to foolish pleas of insanity coming from the mouths of criminals? When will courts grind out justice according to the law and the act of which the man is found guilty? When will jurists cease to weep as a tale of woe is unraveled with the usual heart-rending details surrounding the crime?

The Daily takes no occasion to especially rag the South Carolinian. He may be the victim of the disease, but even so that does not help the young girl who has given her heart to him, believing him to be other than he is. She pays the penalty while he suffers in a hospital. He may get well, she will always be pointed to as the girl who was swept off her feet by a maniac married him, then had the marriage annulled. Just enough false testimony will be added to stain her character. She has something which will prove difficult to live down, though it may be proved that he is not a bigamist and that he is actually suffering from mental strain. A man who is guilty of a charge of bigamy is not good enough to walk the streets with his fellows, though his companions may drink of the dregs of life, though their careers may be spotted and soiled, there is no crime so black as the violation of the honor of a good woman.

says: "Lady Vera Cathcart was seeking advertising and has got it, all right." That may be. But Uncle Sam was not seeking advertising, as a very silly person, and, nevertheless 'he has got it all right.'

DR. SINGER, of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, says mosquitoes kill every year 3,000,000 human beings by implanting germs of malaria in their blood.

This loss Dr. Singer estimates at $100,000,000 a year, rather a low estimate $33 a head. Even a man with malaria should be worth more than that.

IF 3,000,000 people, or 3,000, died in some dramatic way, government would do something about it. But what happens quietly, following a mosquito bite, arouses slight attention.

Nathan Straus, who has done more to protect child life than any other man, said long ago: "If one young child were put to death publicly with a crowd looking on, those guilty would be executed. But 100,000 children can be put to death, quietly by sellers of impure milk and nobody pays any attention."

Mr. Straus fortunately did pay attention and cut down the death rate among very young children by at least half.

THE Prince of Wales takes leprosy in the British Empire more seriously than our government takes malaria in the United States. In all the British Empire—Asia, Africa, everywhere—there are 300,000 lepers. The Prince urges his government to stamp out the disease.

We have in America millions suffering from malaria, which, like leprosy, destroys usefulness, and causes death.

To drain swamps where mosquitoes breed, in the meanwhile using flying machines to "dust" the swamps with a dust deadly to mosquitoes but harmless to human beings, would soon end the malaria plague in the United States.

JACOB HAISH, who invented barbed wire, and an automatic machine for its manufacture, is dead, 99 years old. Cattle men and farmers will bless his memory and hope he went straight to heaven.

Horses and other animals torn on his barbed wire will feel differently, especially the thousands of Western cattle, that, drifting before a storm, were stopped by weak strands of barbed wire and lay down to die.

In the other world, Inventor Haish will find thousands of men hung up by barbed wire entanglements and riddled with shot during the big war. He never planned that.

DR. CHARLES E. BARKER tells you how to live to be 100. Drink 10 or 12 glasses of water each day exercise every morning before you start the day's work, eat little meat, take a teaspoon of salt each morning in a glass of warm water, and two tablespoons of bran in water each night. Many would prefer not to live 100 years.

THE German Aereo Lloyd, combining Germany's flying companies, is starting 42 flying lines, reaching all Germany and many foreign countries. One day flights from Berlin to Moscow are part of the program. Since the end of the war Germany, forbidden by the Allies to manufacture flying machines, has had to content herself with planes having no engines. She is now making up for lost time, and sets an example needed in this country.

Moye Team Will Banquet Monday

Members of the Moye team, in the recent hospital campaign, will be entertained Monday evening at a banquet at the Savoy Cafe, Jimmie James, proprietor of the cafe, being host on that occasion. The following members of the executive committee and other campaign workers have been invited: T. A. Bowles, John Patterson, Charles Rountree, F. H. Pointer, B. D. Meadors, J. H. Johnson, W. W. Fussell, W. M. Bailey, A. D. Jarvis, E. C. Payne, Rev. J. D. Hunter and W. R. Spight.

Members of the team have launched a movement to ascertain whether or not the present hospital organization cannot be retained intact, long enough to put over another campaign for $50,000 for an industrial project.

H. J. McCary old-time fiddler has entertained members of the Talladega fire department with "Leather Britches," "The Mocking Bird," "Arkansas Traveler," and others.

Memorial To Mark Twain Proposed

(Associated Press)

RENO, Nev. Feb. 24—Newspaper editors at Nevada, working through the state editorial association have undertaken a movement to erect a memorial to Mark Twain that will be national in scope.

Beside the cabin in which the famous American humorist scribbled his first draft of Huckleberry Finn, beloved bad boy of the Mississippi river banks, it is proposed to erect a building or perhaps move to this site the old Territorial Enterprise building at Virginia City in which Twain served his cub reportership.

Hartselle Leader Expresses Thanks

Comer Lile, chairman of the Hartselle delegation which recently attended the Older Boys Conference in Albany-Decatur, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., today expressed the thanks and appreciation of his delegation for the attention and courtesies extended during the three day visit here. Mr. Lile sent the following to the Daily: "In behalf of the delegation from Hartselle to the older boys conference of North Alabama, I sincerely thank the citizens of Albany-Decatur for their genuine hospitality and for the many courtesies extended us during the conference."

Very truly,
Comer Lile, chairman

The said sale will be made to satisfy liens held by the said Twin City Oil company on said capital stock on account of indebtedness due it by the aforesaid holders of said stock for the purchase price thereof. The sale will be at public auction and to the highest bidder for cash.

TWIN CITY OIL COMPANY,
M. R. RANKIN,
Sec.-Treas.

Feb. 24 mch 3.

The cabin was occupied by Samuel Clemens when he was hardly more than a boy and before his pen name had much significance in the literary world. It was then situated on the desert near Aurora, but later was transported to Idlewild Park here and became the property of the Huckleberry Finn club.

The Bankhead hotel to be erected in Birmingham will cost $3,500,000.

After the luncheon is served, the party will repair to the Princess theater to witness the movies.

GEORGE WASHINGTON PARTY

Mrs. J. M. Hatfield, Mrs. Zeno Bailey and Mrs. E. D. Berry were joint hostesses at a unique George Washington party on Monday evening at the spacious home of Mrs. Berry on Gordon Drive, West. The home was beautifully and appropriately decorated to carry out the patriotic motif.

A very pretty musical program was given. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Ford's duet was the opening number and was followed by a piano solo by Mrs. E. D. Berry. J. M. Hatfield rendered a ukulele solo accompanied by Mrs. Bobbitt at the piano. A piano solo by Mrs. Richards and a vocal number by Morris Ford closed the program.

Other features of the evening were contests, the first a George Washington skit in which everyone was declared winner and the huge box of candy was enjoyed by all. None was successful at pinning the hatchet on the cherry tree but Binford Turner who pinned nearest the right place was awarded a trophy.

The delicious refreshments served consisted of brick cream in the C. C. colors and cake decorated with hatches. Besides the members of the club the guests included husbands of the members. About thirty were present.

MRS. HUMPHREY

BRIDGE HOSTESS

Mrs. A. E. Humphrey was a bridge hostess of Tuesday having as her guests the following with members of the Tuesday Afternoon Bridge Club: Mrs. C. B. Elliott, Mrs. R. G. Cortner, Mrs. T. A. Caddell, Mrs. W. G. Garlin, Mrs. W. R. Nelson, Mrs. D. S. E. Hols, Mrs. William Moseley Jr., and Mrs. E. W. Godbey. Large bunches of jonquils with potted pans added to the attractiveness of the home.

Two prizes were awarded, one to the club high scorer, Mrs. C. L. Saunders and the other to Mrs. C. B. Elliott who was highest among the visitors.

A plate of delectable refreshments were served.

TUESDAY WHIST CLUB

The Tuesday Whist Club was entertained this week by Mrs. C. W. Knight at the home of Mrs. John Knight on Sherman street with only club members enjoying the games.

Miss Christine Almon was the lucky contestant at bridge and received the club prize, silk hose.

Tempting refreshments were served late in the afternoon.

MRS. VOORHIES ENTERTAINS

Mrs. W. M. Voorhies entertained the Tuesday Club this week at her home with one table of guests honoring Mrs. W. L. Reasonover of Greensboro, Ala., who is the house guest of her sister, Mrs. Charles Rush.

Mrs. Russell Green won the club prize, Mrs. Frank Lide the guest souvenir and Mrs. Voorhies presented Mrs. Reasonover a dainty memento of the afternoon.

A frozen fruit salad course was enjoyed after the games by the members of the club and the guests. The latter were Mrs. Frank Lide, Mrs. Charles Rush, Mrs. Reasonover and Mrs. S. W. Irwin.

JAMES DUNCAN MEMORIAL CIRCLE

The James Duncan Memorial circle met on Monday afternoon at the First Methodist church.

Mrs. L. H. Kilgore presided in the absence of the president in a very efficient manner. She also conducted the mission study on "Centenary Pledges." A short business session was held and at this time, Mrs. Kilgore resigned as chairman of the "Skidoo" committee and Mrs. Moseley was elected to take her place.

The meeting closed with a song and the Lord's prayer in concert.

Mrs. R. T. Sheppard will leave today for Columbia, Tenn., to be the guest of Dr. and Mrs. W. K. Shedden. She will return home Friday.

Many Cases of Grippe Reported In Albany-Decatur

Local People Urged to Use Vigorous Measures to Combat Further Spread of Deep Grippe Colds.

PNEUMONIA CHIEF DANGER

Grippe Attacks Weaken Body's Resistance to Germs of Pneumonia—All Colds Should Be Treated Promptly.

Deep grippy colds have been unusually prevalent here this winter. The situation is fairly general throughout the States. In some sections these colds are called "influenza," but the majority of health officers report that they are much milder than the original epidemic and resemble more closely the old-fashioned la grippe. They are usually accompanied by a headache or aching feeling over the body, "running of the nose," sneezing and frequently by gastric and intestinal complications such as hicoughs, nausea, diarrhea, etc.

Colds are too often neglected until they have lowered the vitality sufficiently to permit the lurking germs which cause pneumonia, bronchitis and influenza to attack the body.

Don't Take Chances

The only safe plan is to attack a cold right at the beginning. A hot foot bath, a laxative, a sweat and a vigorous application of Vicks Vapor

Rub at bedtime over throat and chest will often break up a cold overnight.

For hours after Vicks is applied the vapors of camphor, menthol, eucalyptus, thyme and turpentine, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the infected air passages. At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain.

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist this direct, double action. Vicks Vapor Steam

If the air passages are badly stopped up, try the "toakettle and tent" treatment. This method—fully explained in the directions—consists, briefly of vaporizing Vicks in a tea-kettle and arranging a newspaper "tent" over the patient's head so that the combined warm steam and medicated vapors can be inhaled.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the frequent colds of children, as it can be used freely and often, without disturbing the digestion—you "just rub it on." Over 21 million jars are used yearly—Advt.

The Sensation of the Day In Medicine—HERB JUICE

This herbal preparation is said to be the greatest laxative and stomach remedy yet discovered. Many thousands of sufferers have testified over their name that they have been relieved of constipation, indigestion, and stomach trouble of years standing by its use. Why suffer longer?

Herb Juice will give almost instant relief from indigestion, heartburn, gas on stomach, constipation, dizziness, headache, etc., caused from disordered stomach, liver and kidneys. It is the biggest selling medicine on the market where it is known, over million bottles sold during past year under absolute guarantee to give beneficial results—and less than a dozen bottles returned, a record probably never before established by any other remedy.

Every family needs Herb Juice, as every family necessarily takes a laxative, and Herb Juice is said to be Nature's most effective tonic laxative and system purifier. Can be given to children same as adults, mild, pleasant, yet very effective. Get the original and genuine Miller's Herb Juice, same as shown above and we guarantee beneficial results. Now on sale by leading druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere.

CHANDLER'S

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

A man says he's lost twenty pounds since his wife has been on a diet.

"Where were you last night?"
"I went to a wooden wedding."
"What do you mean, wooden wedding?"
"Why, two Poles were married."

King of Spain attended a brick-layer's wedding. Any king would rather see his people laying bricks than throwing them.

Some folks are called the salt of the earth, red headed ones the pepper of the earth.

Sometimes when the cat's away her husband has the time of his life chasing.

There is no cold cream that will keep away wrinkles so successfully as the milk of human kindness.

You can't tell about married people. Pet names live on long after the affection that coined them is dead.

Love is like a sausage case because it contains many mysteries.

A patriotic wedding: where the bride is red, the groom is white and father after perusing the bills, is blue.

Some singers have mellow voices and others sound like they might have been pulled too soon.

A Friend With a Pull
Cork: Do you know you bore me?
Corkscrew: Well, you'll have to admit I've gotten you out of many a tight place.

It's lucky for some people that their ancestors came over on the Mayflower. There were no immigration restrictions then.

A man's supposed to have a brain. To know enough that when it rains to seek the shelter of his home. The punkest words e'er writ in ink are these here three, 'I didn't think.'

"That's old Dogbody just come out of the telephone box, he's turned ninety-two."

"Lord, How old was he when he went in?"

"Many young men get beautiful wives through luck," says a magazine. Yes, tough luck.

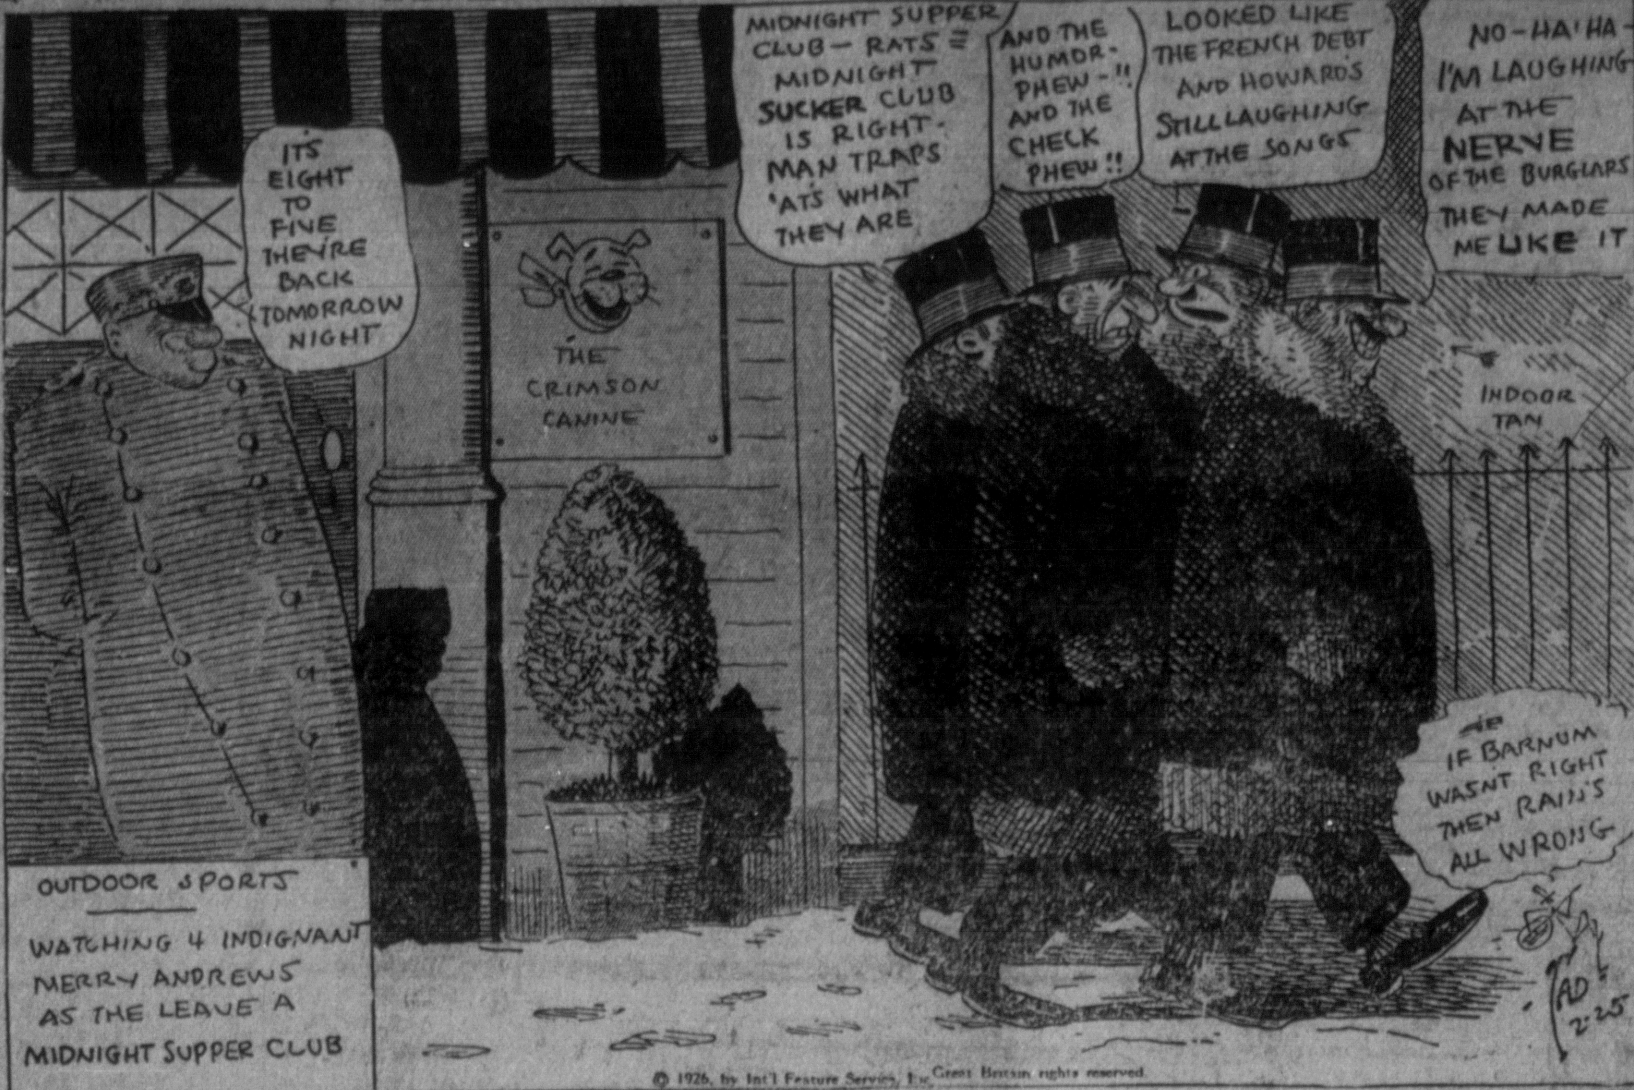

The waiter was exceedingly slow and the guest began to get annoyed. "Look here, waiter," he said at last, "bring me a coffee, and while you're away don't forget to drop me a line occasionally just to let me know how you're getting on."

Foreign count here for matrimonial purposes says he would die if he ever married a woman who was his inferior mentally. Well, he's perfectly safe.

Magic City Has 10 Acre Camp

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 24—Birmingham will have a tourist camp to be maintained on a ten-acre tract on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway three and one-half miles south of the city.

City water and sewer connections will be maintained at the camp. The camp is designed not only to serve tourists but will serve many Birmingham residents who want to spend a while in the open away from soot and smoke.

Ellenen Receives Big Broom Order

Pursuing its policy of helping local industries when possible, the Louisville and Nashville railroad company is in receipt of an order for more than 200 dozen brooms from the Albany broom factory. The local plant now is running on full time and is about 100 dozen brooms behind with orders the management stated. The outlook for future operation is exceptionally good, it was added.

Saints Gather Win Over High

St. Bernard last night evened matters with the Albany high school, when the latter journeyed to Cullman. The Saints broke through the Albany defense in the last quarter and narched to a 19-14 victory. The game was tied at several stages. St. Bernard lead at the half 8-6, but at the end of the third quarter the high school had evened matters, bringing the standing to 10 all. The Saints took a few long shots and the game was over ending 19-14 in their favor. Hurst played a nice game for the locals at center. Perie and Spencer worked at forwards, Stinson and Johnson at guards.

Watch Your Frail, Puny Child Grow Strong, Take On Weight

In just a few days—quicker than you ever dreamt of—these wonderful flesh making tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets will start to help any weak, thin, undernourished little one.

After sickness and where rickets are suspected they are especially valuable. No need to give them any more nasty Cod Liver Oil—these tablets are made to take the place of that good but evil smelling, stomach upsetting medicine and they surely do it. They do put on flesh.

Ask Caddell Drug Co., or any druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—as easy to take as candy and not at all expensive—60 tablets 60 cents.

Be sure and get McCoy's the original and genuine and give the child a chance for 30 days. If you aren't delighted with results just get your money back.—Adv.

Outlook Appears Dark For Team To Represent Cities In Tri-State Loop

The outlook for Albany-Decatur obtaining a berth in the Tri-State loop appears dark, following the gathering of only a handful of fans last night at Decatur city hall.

Those who met to discuss the possibility, however, were determined to exhaust every means before giving up the fight, and those present were requested to discuss with as many persons as possible today the question of whether or not the necessary $5,000 fund could be raised and to report this afternoon by telephone to Charles Rountree, chairman.

Practically every fan present last night of the opinion that the team would be a "go" providing the fund could be raised. In fact some fans believed that the most, if not all, of the funds placed at the club's disposal would be returned and, if the team was fortunate enough to sell a player or so, that the season might be a financial success.

Following the report of fans to Chairman Rountree, it will be determined whether or not another conference of fans will be necessary.

BOWLING MATCH SET

The Central Y. M. C. A. of Huntsville is scheduled to bowl the local Association a third game of a series of four this coming Saturday. The match will be bowled by telephone as was the first one a few weeks past.

Dr. Baugh, Gallagher, Sorber, Sims and Yarbrough will compose the local cup team, with Herman Troup and Dr. Clements as alternates. Match will begin promptly at 7:30.

County Fair Dates Are Settled

(Associated Press)
ANNISTON, Ala., Feb. 22—Plans for the Calhoun county fair to be held here, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce have been laid and the dates set from Nov. 2 to Nov. 6.

The dates will be submitted to the board of directors of the commercial body for final ratification.

Plans also have been made to increase the premium from $2,000 to $2,500.

Sharing Prosperity and Helping to Produce It

The latest statistics furnished by the United States Census Bureau indicate that in the fourteen states served by the "Old Reliable" the ratio of prosperity to every 100,000 population is substantially greater than that of the United States as a whole.

By furnishing adequate freight and passenger service for both long and short distances and by constant striving for betterment in every department of its service, this Railroad is adding to the prosperity of the territory it serves.

Remember that in the matter of wages, taxes and maintenance expenses, the steam railroads of America are investing large sums of money which pay large returns in community prosperity. The railroads deserve your patronage. They are affording the highest type of transportation service every day in the year and are working shoulder to shoulder with you for community good.

Notice!

Dog licenses are now delinquent.
License paid by March 1, $1. After March 1, penalty added.

The law requires that all dogs be tagged at once.
